

THE  TIMES

14.02.09

MAGAZINE

QUEEN OF LOVE

How the fashion world fell for Katie Grand

PLUS LOOKING FOR THE ONE
A year in the life of an internet dater

THE PEOPLES
COOK
Delia Smith on food snobs, royals and passion
By Mick Hume

Queen of Love,
Katie Grand,
is named
the Year
by Dan Dunn

Style In store

What can be more covetable than the original Burberry trench? Guaranteed to look sharp in ten years (£595, 0700 785676).

THE TROPHY

THE DEAL

The perfect pump, at a fraction of the price of top-end rivals. Bloch at Selfridges, £100 (0800 123400).

The Tiffany Key looks great layered with other necklaces. £200 (00800 20001122).

THE LITTLE GEM

JANE TAYLOR-HAYHURST

Socks and sandals

The sock is the fashionista's solution to wearing sandals in winter – it looks chic and very now, with Marni and Burberry heralding the look for their spring/summer collections. Hosiery specialists such as Falke (020-7493 8442) and Tabio (www.tabio.com) have vast ranges of colours, fabrics and lengths that will suit every ankle, from £5. In this weather, your toes will thank you for it.

THE DETAIL

Pssst...

London Fashion Week starts this Friday and the perfect place to party is the Double Club, the venue/art installation by Carsten Höller, supported by Prada. This Congo-themed pop-up club in Islington is only open until May, so get your skates on before it goes (www.thedoubleclub.co.uk).

Today Kinder Aggugini presents his first show. With his debut collection snapped up by Rei Kawakubo for Dover Street Market in London, and a host of fans including Madonna and Kate Hudson, this will be the insiders' one to watch.

Topshop at Oxford Circus has plenty on to celebrate fashion week – from today, trained milliners will be embellishing mini top hats; there will be an in-store haberdashery for customising purchases; plus, alterations workshops and a bakery (www.topshop.com).

THE LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT: WHEELIE CASES

Tough enough to withstand the long haul, these cases stand out from the crowd on the baggage carousel

